

Episode 6 –The “Imagine”

Some of you have asked about the boat, so here are some of the details of our new home.

“Imagine” is a 35 foot Island Packet Catamaran.

Accommodations

From the cockpit you step into the salon. The salon and galley are all on the same level so the chef can be in on the party. To starboard is a spacious U shaped galley. Forward is an L shaped settee. A table unfolds from the starboard bulkhead in 2 sections. A navigation station is just inside the companionway to port.

Steps lead down from the center of the salon to identical suites in each of the pontoons. A sliding door separates Capt.'s suite from the salon. Forward are drawers, lockers and a queen size berth. Aft is the head with separate shower. Behind the shower is a large access door to the engine room.

- 2 completely private suites
- 2 queen size berths
- 2 separate showers
- L shaped settee offers corners where you can lean back and put your feet up to read or watch TV
- Wraparound tinted windows give that open feeling and keep out some of the heat
- Dual 16,000 BTU Cruisair reverse cycle air conditioning and heat
- Lots of opening hatches and windows for light and ventilation
- Screens
- Hella 12 vdc fans

Tanks

Fuel: 55 gal diesel

Fresh Water: 140 gal in two tanks under berths

Holding: 90 gal

This is the foredeck with cushions for relaxing.

Aft view with davit for carrying the dinghy.

Salon

Salon before we filled it up. Now the entire shelf space is full.

Salon with his and hers computer workstations.
When we watch movies, we use a laptop on the built in table and put the other table away.

Head (bathroom)

These are pictures of the head (bathroom). There is a head in each pontoon. They have a sink, shower and toilet. The door in the back of the shower leads to the engine. There is a 27 horsepower Yanmar diesel engine on each side.

We take showers in the marina most of the time, so we use the showers on boat for storage.

Here you see a stack of tubs with a fish net curtain to hold them in place. You also see our laundry basket.

Cockpit

Captain's chair behind the Wheel and Electronics

Garmin does our charting

When we are not sailing this is Joyce's corner

this is Capt Doug's corner

There are clear panels on each side that can be rolled down if it rains. There is also a panel all around the front. The center can be opened for a breeze or closed for rain. A bimini covers the entire cockpit.

Galley (kitchen)-definitely one butt

Galley when we bought it.

Galley with our "stuff" aboard.

Navigation station with radio

Add a coffee pot, smoothie maker, and soda maker

Starboard Stateroom

There is another stateroom like this on the port side that we use for storage.

There is a freshwater tank under each berth.

There is a hanging closet in each behind the door beyond the berth.

Beyond the hanging storage on each side there is another door to more dry storage.

On the port side you see more tubs and under them our vacuum cleaner.

To follow our adventures, please go to www.Windsongsail.com, click on "Our Stories" and select our names from the list of "Cruisers".

Love to all,
Capt. Doug and First Mate Joyce