What's New! ...

We added a NEW
Great Escape Outing!

"Lunch-N-Learn"
April 13, 2013
3:00 p.m.-6:00 p.m.

It's just like a Great Escape, but with a twist. There is a bit of fun "Educational Practice" included.

Students plan, plot, navigate under sail and drop anchor to dine, then try to find their way back to the marina as a timed exercise.

Doesn't that sound like fun?

Captain Dave's Tips

New Year's resolutions are great, but often an accountability partner keeps one on track. Our Training Coordinator Pam Long well understands this.

Successful resolutions should be written, frequently reviewed, adapted as necessary and acted upon in stages. Dreams are purely emotional and as a result often fail. So if sailing is a dream of yours, you must resolve to make it occur through logical and proper planning, budgeting, allocation of time and making it fun. So what if you get off track? That's where an accountability partner is key. Involve your family in your dream. Ensure that Pam thoroughly understands your goal, your past experiences and your time frame. Promises to others produce a level of commitment that will best ensure your success but we are here to guide that process with you.

For some, sailing may not come with a specific goal in mind. Sailing can be a great escape from life's pressures. In which case the plan is much simpler; make a date, show up and participate. Only you can decide if you're pursuing pleasure or escaping pain. Perhaps a blunt way to put it, but these are only two primary motivators in our lives. Everyone must decide which applies to them. Sailing can be part of a grand dream for pleasure or merely stolen moments of escape for yourself.

Whatever your life situation, the message is very clear. Stop dreaming. Start living your life. Commit to

Be one of the first on board for this unique outing!

YEAR ROUND!!!

DO IT! Start TODAY.

It must be understood that nothing of value ever comes easy, so look forward to successes and failures along the way. We often learn more from our failures than our successes, so appreciate challenges for what they are--- opportunities for growth.

Hope to see you on the water soon!

Happy New Year and Happy Sailing

Tips and Reminders!

With the boat show just around the corner, now is the best time to register for your 2013 classes, to ensure the broadest selection of dates and times. Seats may become harder to find after the show ends.

Students discover that pre-booking class reservations well into the summer ensures continued training without winding up on the "Waiting List" for cancellations. With our liberal cancellation policy (At least 4 days prior to your class), planning your summer of sailing is easy and at no risk since payment is not due till the day of each class

HAPPY SAILING!
